Conceptual Progress in International Environmental Politics

Friday, 19 June 2020 10:00 (1h 30m)

Whilst significant theoretical progress has been achieved in International Environmental Politics, many of the key concepts are susceptible to being 'taken as given' and being considered unquestioningly as perennial 'truths' of the discipline. This panel intends to address that lacuna by deconstructing and revisioning salient concepts of International Environmental Politics, interrogating their theoretical and practical implications.
