China and data security challenges: domestic surveillance and transnational governance

Wednesday, 15 June 2022 10:45 (1h 30m)

This panel features how China has dealt with the rising data security challenges in global governance. The panel, on one hand, looks at how China's authority and social media platforms engage with data security domestically; on the other hand, it looks further into how China exerts its normative influence on global data security governance via the digital Belt and Road Initiative and the UN arenas.
