

International Affairs at 100: what of the future of war debate?

Wednesday, June 15, 2022 3:00 PM (1h 30m)

Think tanks like the Council of Foreign Relations and Chatham House were created in the immediate aftermath of the First World War. For these and other think-tanks the study of war, whether it be in terms of disarmament and arms control, wars prevention, its conduct and the effects that it has on individuals, groups and the wider world, has been a consistent area of study. Reflecting on a century of debate in the journal International Affairs this roundtable proposes to discuss the 'Future of War' debate from a variety of different perspectives to debate whether what can be learned from past debates and discussions about what the future will bring.
