

Contribution ID: 887

Type: Panel

Communication and messaging of violence

Friday, June 17, 2022 3:00 PM (1h 30m)

Political violence isn't solely reducible to actual physical acts: It invariably involves communicative dimensions that give the violence its political character. The papers will explore the communicative practices of violent actors, examining questions around the ways in which they use social media; how they seek to shape ideologies and identities through their statements and other outputs; and the role of the visual in propaganda.

Track Classification: Political Violence, Conflict and Transnational Activism