UACES: How can European Studies survive?

Tuesday, 14 June 2022 16:45 (1h 30m)

European Studies is facing challenging times particularly in the UK. Brexit, the steady decline in language learning, changes to the Law qualifying system and a hostile political environment are putting the teaching of the EU, and European Studies more broadly, at risk. Simultaneously, our research expertise is both needed more than ever by policy makers, but has also become politicised in unexpected ways. These challenges are not confined to the UK. The round table will reflect on this challenging environment and the steps we might take to remain relevant.
