

Contribution ID: 1496

Type: not specified

Communication beyond the article

Thursday, 22 June 2023 10:45 (1h 30m)

Publishing an article in a journal is the cornerstone of academia today: it's necessary to get your research out in the world, and often a requirement of your job. Yet the process of publishing can be long and challenging, especially for early career scholars.

However, there are many other ways to engage with the field. In this roundtable, experts will share advice on how scholars can engage with their peers and share their research without publishing in a journal. From established formats like book reviews, blogs, newsletters and op-eds, to podcasts and social media, this session will help you dip your toe into the IR space before (or alongside) publishing.

Track Classification: BISA