From the Domestic to the International in the Middle East and Asia

Wednesday, 21 June 2023 09:00 (1h 30m)

This panel examines challenges ranging from the domestic to the international which confront states in the Middle East and Asia. We consider how the pandemic has changed India's approaches to multilateralism and China's strategy of nationalising its education curriculum. We look at the impact of climate on state policies, from contentious hydro-politics in the Euphrates-Tigris river basin to Jordanian rent-seeking driven by climate change.
