Celebrating CPD's Early Career Paper Prize Winner

Friday, 23 June 2023 15:00 (1h 30m)

This roundtable spotlights the work of this year's paper prize winner. The prize is aimed at supporting CPD's early career members in the development of peer-reviewed work, while at the same time carving out space in International Studies to engage with the question of empire and coloniality as fundamental to the discipline.

In addition to being invited to present their paper at this year's conference, the prize winner will be mentored through the review process at Review of International Studies, as a co-sponsor of the prize. This process will enable the desk-review to be waived, and the paper to be sent directly to external reviewers, who will make all final decisions about accepting the paper for publication.
