Whose Security? Critical Reflections on Security Policy In the UK

Wednesday, 5 June 2024 15:00 (1h 30m)

This roundtable critically engages with security policy and practice in the UK. Following the Integrated Review in 2021, and the 'Refresh' in 2023, the roundtable will reflect on which 'security' issues are being prioritised by the UK, which are being deprioritised, and whose security is – and whose security is not – represented in the current security framework. The roundtable brings together speakers from a range of professional backgrounds, including policymaking, the third sector and academia, with a view to establishing a critical yet policy-engaged dialogue on the limits and possibilities of UK national security policy and practice.
