Feminist Security Studies: Gendering, Strategy, Tactics

Thursday, 6 June 2024 15:00 (1h 30m)

Feminist contributions to international security are more relevant than ever, not least in a world defined by patriarchal leadership and power relations, instability, war, conflict as well as new weapons and technologies. Feminist provide new insights into such strategic developments by employing an intersectional approach to the study of drones, border wars and collective violence. This panel provides a range of feminist interventions on pressing issues in global politics.
