Power & Governance in Digital Global Politics

Friday, 7 June 2024 10:45 (1h 30m)

This panel explores processes of norm formation, policy creation and governance in response to new possibilities in cyber tech. Governing the digital realm has become an increasingly central task for states and international institutions, and threats propagate and evolve rapidly. These papers consider how leading digital frontier states like China and the UK understand possibilities for governance, influence and the wielding of power.
