Power Shifts and their Implications

Friday, 20 June 2025 09:00 (1h 30m)

This panel considers power shifts, particularly international decline and hegemonic change, and the implications thereof for order and conflict. The papers offer theoretically diverse perspectives on power shifts and decline, from realist to constructivist work on the topic. Some papers are more conceptual and theoretical while others are more empirically-focused. The panel will have wide appeal in the wake of debates over US-China relations and the return of Donald Trump to power.
