

Contribution ID: 1904 Contribution code: WE 18

Type: Roundtable

The Future of Security Studies

Wednesday 18 June 2025 10:45 (1h 30m)

As the European Journal of International Security enters its tenth year, the journal is using this roundtable to take stock of the direction of the field. What debates have run their course? What debates are emerging? In short: what will volumes of EJIS in the next ten years be filled with? Chaired by the current EJIS editor and comprising former editors, editorial board members, and a current associate editor, the roundtable brings together a set of academics from disparate sub-fields of security studies to debate the state of the discipline and signpost the future direction of travel.

Participants:

Caroline Kennedy-Pipe (University of Loughborough)

Membership

Presenters: MUMFORD, Andrew (University of Nottingham); KENNEDY-PIPE, Caroline (University of Loughborough); RALPH, Jason (University of Leeds); DEYERMOND, Ruth (King's College London); EDMUNDS, Timothy (University of Bristol)

Track Classification: European Journal of International Security