History, Identity, and Spatial Politics in Understanding Contemporary Turkey

Thursday 4 June 2026 09:00 (1h 30m)

This panel explores how historical narratives, identity formation, and spatial politics intersect to shape contemporary Turkey's political and social landscape. Bringing together analyses of authoritarian resilience, counter-mapping practices, neo-Ottoman cultural production, and minority experiences, the papers reveal the layered processes through which power is legitimised and contested.
