War and Civilian Harm

Wednesday 3 June 2026 15:00 (1h 30m)

This panel explores the many ways civilians are harmed in war, from how local actors coordinate violence to how essential resources like water become tools of coercion. The papers consider both the material and symbolic dimensions of suffering, including how violence is represented, governed, and justified. Taken together, they highlight the complex forces that shape civilian vulnerability across contemporary conflicts.
